

We have a 17 year old minor parent whose needs had been included in her parent's ADC case as a "dependent child". She signed a Self-Sufficiency Contract and was participating in EF to meet the definition of a "dependent child" because she was not a full-time student. She is now 18, is emancipated and receives ADC for herself and her child. Does she need to sign a new contract?

She is now a minor parent head-of-household and is considered a Work Eligible individual (468 NAC 2-020.01). Her benefits are now subject to the 60-month lifetime limit and a new contract must be signed.
